Remote Tutoring/Homework Help and Enrichment Opportunities
(Grades Pre-K through High School)

The Sue Duncan Children’s Center is offering remote tutoring/homework help and enrichment opportunities to the students and families we serve during the COVID-19 pandemic impact. Students who were enrolled into our program during the 2019/2020 school year have automatically been accepted into our program for the new school year. Parents of students who were not enrolled into our program last school year should contact the Center at 773-942-2277 for enrollment information.

Tutoring and Homework Help
As with our in-person program, we are collaborating with student tutors from the University of Chicago Neighborhood Schools Program and The Chicago School of Professional Psychology. Sessions include tutoring/homework help, mentorship, special learning projects, and activities that will give students mental breaks from the pressures caused by the COVID-19 pandemic impact (games and artistic activities).

Tele-Therapy
We realize our students and families are dealing with added stress caused by the COVID-19 pandemic impact including remote learning and child care challenges, isolation, job insecurity, health issues, anxiety, grief and more. In addition to individual counseling for children, the Tele-Therapy program offers family therapy, specialized services for adults struggling with work-life balance, and trauma-informed therapies for persons who are survivors of violence and abuse.

Parent Support Group
You don’t have to do it alone. Our Parent Support Group is an opportunity to provide informal mutual support and discuss parenting challenges and strategies in a safe and supportive space during the COVID-19 crisis.
